

Worksheet 8: Fill in the gaps answers

1

Functionalism

Functionalism is a consensus theory. They think that people agree on the basic norms and values of society. These are transmitted through the processes of socialisation. This occurs in two phases: primary and secondary. Informal social control reinforces what is taught through negative and positive sanctions. If socialisation is successful it leads to social cohesion which means people have a sense of belonging and there is social order.

social control	consensus	norms	belonging	values	sanctions	primary
	social cohesion		socialisation	secondary

Marxism

Marxism is a conflict theory. They think there is no real agreement on social norms and values. Instead, society is split into two classes: the bourgeoisie or owners of the means of production and the proletariat who are the workers. The bourgeoisie dominate and exploit the workers who suffer from false consciousness. This means they do not realise they are being oppressed. They accept capitalist values including the idea that the rich deserve their wealth and privileges. So they are unlikely to challenge the ruling ideas and remain in their low status position.

	means of production	conflict	false consciousness
classes	privileges	proletariat	deserve	workers	challenge
		agreement	status		oppressed

Feminism

Feminists are like Marxists in that they see society as divided, not based on social class but based on gender. Ann Oakley argued that children are socialised into gender roles in the family through processes such as canalisation, manipulation and verbal appellations. This is reinforced by other agents of socialisation. Girls learn to become feminine and boys learn to be masculine and they are rewarded if they conform to gender stereotypes and negatively sanctioned if they deviate.

stereotypes	Oakley	agents	gender roles	divided	socialisation
manipulation	sanctioned	verbal appellations	family	conform	masculine
